Abstract

expansion of the relations between Written Heritage Research Center and other related Centres in and out of Iran, extension of the Centre's activities in various areas concerning textology and codicology caused our colleagues to find a way to reflect the new relations and activities. So they started publishing a newsletter to inform those interested in codicology and textology the nature of the different activities of our centre.

Variety of the news and extensiveness of the centre's activities demands a newsletter covering the latest news in the centre besides Ay Miras which especially publishes the articles and researches on textology and codicology.

In this issue, the following news and subjects are being reflected and informed after a short word by the editor-in-chief regarding the centre's programmes and activities.
